For this assignment, write a diary entry from the perspective of either Crooks or Curley’s wife. Try to write the diary entry in the character’s dialect, or how your character speaks depending on their location or social group. The diary entries should be at least a page. Imagine a day from that character’s perspective:

- What are his/her personality traits? (Think back to the character posters! Ask Mrs. Walkup if you want to look at your character’s poster or want another attribute list.)
- What did he/she do that day?
- What did he/she think about?
- Who did he/she talk to?
- How did he/she feel? Consider their concerns, fears, and hopes.

Be creative! There is no wrong interpretation of a character as long as it is grounded by evidence in the book!
